

Weed Alert!

Poison hemlock

Poison hemlock

(Conium maculatum)

Mature Size Shoulder

Description

- 4-8 ft. perennial with flowerheads of clustered numerous small, white flowers
- Flowerheads are umbrella-shaped
- Large, carrot-like mature leaves triangular shaped in outline
- Smooth green hollow stem, usually spotted or streaked with red or purple on lower half
- Grows as a round low cluster of leaves in the first year
- Plants are poisonous and can cause contact dermatitis
- Reproduces by seed
- Spread by waterways, roads, and in mud stuck to clothing and equipment
- Native to Europe

Bloom Period Apr - Sep

Habitat Chaparral, coastal prairie, marsh and swamp, riparian, disturbed areas

2-Minute Removal Dig

Image credits: Front and bottom two on back: J.M. DiTomaso
©2007 The Regents of the University of California, Back top: Doug Goldman, hosted by the USDA-NRCS PLANTS Database / USDA-NRCS-NPDT; icons by Tim Hyland
These cards were adapted from a design by National Park Service.